Posttraumatic Stress Disorder and Problem Gambling

This presentation will address current understanding of the association between posttraumatic stress disorder (PTSD) and problem gambling. We will address background, rates, clinical presentation, and treatment challenges. In addition, the workshop will provide an overview of Seeking Safety, an evidence-based therapy for trauma and/or addiction. The model has been implemented with problem gamblers as well as substance abuse clients. It teaches present-focused coping skills to help clients attain safety in their lives. It is highly flexible and can be conducted with a broad range of clients, clinicians, and settings. There are up to 25 treatment topics, each representing a safe coping skill relevant to both trauma and addiction, such as “Asking for Help”, “Creating Meaning”, “Compassion”, and “Healing from Anger”. Topics can be done in any order and the treatment can be done in few or many sessions as time allows. Seeking Safety strives to increase hope through emphasis on ideals; it offers exercises, emotionally-evocative language, and quotations to engage patients; attends to clinician processes; and provide concrete strategies to build recovery skills.

Objectives:
1) To increase understanding of co-occurring PTSD and problem gambling
2) To learn about Seeking Safety therapy for use with problem gambling
3) To obtain assessment and treatment resources

Behavioral Tracking and other Technological Trends in Gambling

Technology has changed the nature of gambling practices over the last decade and is continuing to do so. This presentation will concentrate on the use of behavioral tracking technologies and evaluate the positives and negatives and the implications for problem gambling screening tools and the development of tools for player protection. The presentation also briefly reviews what I believe are the ten most notable changes and trends that the gambling studies field is witnessing as a consequence of the impact of technology. The talk briefly examines and review the psychological implications concerning the: (i) feminization of remote gambling, (ii) increase in numbers of digital natives, (iii) increase of empirical research into remote gambling (particularly internet gambling), (iv) increase in mobile gaming, (v) increase in technological advertising and marketing of gambling, (vi) increase in gambling via social networking sites, (vii) increase in gambling convergence and cross-fertilization of technologies, (viii) emergence of new type(s) of problem gambling, (ix) increase in online help and therapy for problem gamblers, and (x) increase in use of behavioral tracking data.

Keith Whyte, Executive Director
National Council on Problem Gambling
The Future of Gambling and Problem Gambling in America

This presentation will provide a perspective on national gambling trends and problem gambling issues. Critical questions to be addressed include: How does the public view gambling addiction? Will internet gambling be legalized? What is the Federal role in problem gambling services? Will gambling continue to expand, and if so how and where? The presentation includes discussion of how participants can help shape the answers to these questions.

Grief Speaks
Gambling and Grief: Exploring the Connections

Explore the connections between gambling and grief from the time line before, during and after the problem gambling. Often there can be loss and grief traced back to a time prior to the onset of problem gambling. During the course of problem gambling there is obvious cause for grief on the part of the person gambling as well as for family, friends and co-workers. There’s often a loss of trust, loss of significant relationship, finances, possibly health issues and work. Then there is the grief experienced when a person stops compulsive gambling ending an unhealthy behavior that also may have some positive things associated with it such as socialization, pleasure, excitement, connection and belonging, and a sense of purpose. Participants will learn about the concepts of grief, mourning and disenfranchised grief, ambiguous loss and complicated grief. Discuss the future of the importance of screening for problem gambling behaviors both on an in-patient and outpatient setting as is done for other mental health disorders. Find out how gender and age factors may relate to gambling and the corresponding grief experiences.

Workshop Descriptions

Seeking Safety: Clinical Implementation for Problem Gambling
Lisa M. Najavits, PhD

This presentation will expand on the keynote presentation by covering specific Seeking Safety treatment interventions, a clinical demonstration, adaptation to problem gambling, and steps in learning the model. By the end, participants will be able to conduct the model in their settings, if they choose to. We discuss the flexibility of the model-- with men or women; group or individual format; open or closed groups; adults and adolescents; diverse settings (e.g., outpatient, residential); all types of trauma and addictions; acute and chronic conditions; and full or sub threshold disorders. It can be conducted by any clinician (no specific degree nor prior training required). We address frequently asked questions about implementing Seeking Safety; and explore topics such as adaptation of the model, how to combine it with other treatments, and discussion of the clinician role. The workshop will be highly clinically-oriented and interactive.

Objectives:
1) To observe and/or participate in a role-play demonstration of a Seeking Safety session.
2) To learn frequently-asked questions in implementing Seeking Safety.
3) To address how to adapt the model to different populations and settings.
Internet gambling, problem gambling and psychosocial impacts: A British perspective
Mark Griffiths, PhD

This presentation will review some of the research on Internet gambling carried out by the International Gaming Research Unit (IGRU) over the last few years and examine the relationship between internet gambling, problem gambling and psychosocial impacts. The main focus of the presentation will be to concentrate on the analyses of representative national samples of Internet gamblers using our participant data from the 2007 and 2011 British Gambling Prevalence Surveys (n=9,003 in 2007; n=7,756 in 2011). The presentation will also review various other IGRU research projects including studies using behavioural tracking data from 160,000 online gamblers, and a variety of survey studies examining specific types of online gambling (e.g., online poker), specific sub-groups (e.g., students), and specific online game characteristics (e.g., structural characteristics of online games).

Grieving the Loss of Compulsive Gambling: The Importance of Understanding Disenfranchised Grief
Lisa Athan, MA

In the case of a disenfranchised loss, the disenfranchisement seems to stem from a failure or unwillingness to recognize that a real loss actually has taken place. Giving up a life style or way of life, friends, activities and a set of behaviors, in the name of recovery is still a loss none the less. Too often we ignore the grief that occurs in anticipation or following the loss of a behavior such as compulsive gambling. Disenfranchisement, according to Kenneth Doka who coined the term in 1983, applies to people who are not recognized or accepted as having the status of persons who experience grief. We will explore the losses around recovery as well as tools and strategies that will encourage healthy grief responses as well as discover helpful tools and strategies that support this important grief work.

The Impact of Problem Gambling on a Spouse and the "21 Steps to Stop Gambling Workbook”
Heiko Ganzer, LCSW-R, CASAC- Money Additions of America, LLC

The 21 steps is a workbook that provides step by step instruction which helps gamblers to change addictive thought patterns, the exercises that are contained in the workbook are designed to work with the therapist in overcoming the gambling habit, and it also provides a internet support network needed to create recovery. We will review the workbook and the recover meter as well as some of the steps towards recovery. The presentation will include a review of issues that present for the co-dependent spouse of a gambler. We will discuss why they need to be in treatment for co-dependency and what they can do to help recover from living with a gambler.

Utilizing Recovery Coaching for Gambling Addicts
Jim Wuelfing, CPP-R, NPPR

A recovery coach is anyone interested in promoting recovery by removing barriers and obstacles to recovery and serving as a personal guide and mentor for people seeking or already in recovery. The training will provide participants with a comprehensive overview of the purpose and tasks of a recovery coach and will explain the various roles played by a recovery coach. Particular parameters of using coaching with gambling addicts will be addressed and models from around the country will be explored. Participants will be able to:

- Describe the roles and functions of a recovery coach
- Provide examples of the recovery coach process
- Discuss using recovery coaching with gambling addicts.
