

Heightened impulsivity is a trait that could signal a future gambling addiction for social or problem gamblers, even though they may not meet DSM-IV criteria for pathological behavior, according to a presentation at AAAP's recent annual meeting. Do you measure impulsivity when screening for pathological gambling?

A. Always

13% (2)

B. Often

20% (3)

C. Occasionally

20% (3)

D. Never

0% (0)

E. I do not screen patients for pathological gambling

46% (7)